

Peter A. Pappas MD FACS

Dr. Peter Pappas is a Trauma, Critical Care and Acute Care Surgeon at Health First/Holmes Regional Medical Center in Melbourne, Florida. Dr.

Pappas was raised in Central Florida and graduated with an MD with Research Distinction from the University of Miami/Miller School of Medicine. He subsequently completed internship and residency in General Surgery at UM/Jackson Memorial Hospital. Dr. Pappas returned to Central Florida and completed fellowships in Surgical Critical Care and Trauma at Orlando Regional Medical Center. Dr. Pappas serves as Vice Chairman of the Holmes Regional Department of Surgery, medical director for the Health First Training Center and is an Assistant Professor with the University Of Central Florida College Of Medicine.

Dr. Pappas is actively involved with issues effecting Florida's trauma and EMS systems, serving on the Florida Committee on Trauma Executive Committee, the EMSTARs data committee and as an ex-officio member of FloridaNet. Dr. Pappas is also the lead physician for the Florida Committee on Trauma/Department of Health SPARROWNet® initiative, using telemedicine technologies to link Florida's trauma centers together for disaster management, training and mutual aid.